Neurodiversity at Work

Nothing about us without us

Within the CAN initiative - Counselling and Career Guidance for Adults to Value Neurodiversity stakeholders' engagement is the mechanism that connects experience, knowledge and action.

Practitioners, employers, researchers, policymakers and citizens exchanging ideas and experiences

Why to engage in CAN?

1. Improve quality by incorporating diverse forms of knowledge throughout development
2. Enhance relevance by ensuring that activities respond to real needs
3. Strengthen legitimacy by developing outputs through transparent and participatory processes
4. Increase likelihood of uptake and adopt for co-designed approaches
5. Contribute to cultural change by modelling inclusive participation

4 levels of engagement

Collaboration - enabling stakeholders to co-design activities and outputs Learning - facilitating peer exchange and professional development Validation - ensuring project outputs reflect real-world needs and experiences Influence - creating opportunities for policy dialogue and systemic change.

What is for you?

CAN Coalition for Valuing Neurodiversity open community for continuous dialogue.

co-design methodologies strengthen partnerships across sectors and countries policy recommendations and strategic roadmaps

CAN Labs the place where innovation happens.

concrete challenges about neuroinclusive guidance learning and employment experiment and test innovation-led methods encourage dialogue between perspectives

Community of Practice the sustainability mechanisms of CAN.

continuous learning, professional exchange and collaboration sustain dialogue on emerging challenges, new evidence and approaches ensuring open access

Co-creation
Accessibility by Design Universal design
Participation
Intersectionality
Transparency

CAN closes the gap

CAN will provide neuroinclusive career guidance, practitioner training and a workplace recognition mark for employers - all free to access.

Find out more at ValuingNeurodiversity.eu can Valuing neurodiversity.

Co-funded by the European Union

Funded by the European Union. Views and opinions expressed are however those of the author(s) only and do not necessarily reflect those of the European Union or the European Education and Culture Executive Agency (EACEA). Neither the European Union nor EACEA can be held responsible for them.